Alameda County	Alameda Youth Court	The Alameda Youth Court represents a collaboration between the Alameda Police Department (APD) and the McCullum Youth Court (MYC). APD will work with MYC to hold juvenile offenders accountable for their criminal actions using a peer driven adjudication process where youth attorneys prosecute and defend youth clients, and youth juries sentence offenders. Binding sentences include intensive case management and workshops and activities that are rehabilitative and restorative.	$ 13,958.00
Alameda County	Eden Township Substation Youth Services Project	Childhood prostitution and sexual exploitation is a growing problem in Alameda County. An assessment tool will be developed which identifies juvenile offenders who are victims of sexual exploitation and/or domestic violence. Assessment results will be linked to specific treatment interventions.	$ 58,000.00
Amador County	JABG 2004	This program provides for after school classes/group sessions in accountability and basic life skills such as anger management, theft awareness, financial literacy, and health and nutrition information and accessibility, and other pro-social skills.	$ 7,473.00
Anaheim	Suppress, Intervene and Prevent Gang Activity	The Anaheim Police Department (APD), in cooperation with Anaheim Union High School District, will provide suppression, intervention and prevention services to the School District, including presentations concerning gang trends, dress, activities and known "hangouts". APD will also teach parenting classes, enforce laws on school campuses, respond to school safety-related issues, implement gang diversion strategies, mentor, counsel and mediate between students, school personnel and parents. APD will identify and document gang members for inclusion in the statewide database. APD will attend Advisory Board Meetings, School Attendance Review Boards and Local School Placement Committee Hearings.	$ 58,719.00
Antioch	Antioch Police Department Youth Intervention Program	The Antioch Police Department, through contracted services with REACH Project, Inc., would provide an early intervention program for juvenile offenders based on principles of restorative justice. Youth offenders would be put through highly interactive activities designed to obtain concrete awareness, understanding and appreciation of the levels and types of consequences caused by their law violating behavior(s). These juveniles would create, articulate, and manage individual plans for "restoring" their inflicted damages. Each participant would have a designated REACH staff person to work closely with and oversee minor's implemented corrections toward their negative incident(s). Each youth participant would have a completed evaluation to determine the level to which objectives and goals of the program were met. This would include the stated restorative justice plan, the level to which each area was implemented, the total number of documented participating hours and a self-statement in the form of a commitment toward health, safe and law abiding actions. Parents would participate in both agency sponsored "parent education evenings" as well as through their child's take home restorative justice assignments designed for family involvement.	$ 15,736.00

Clovis	Community Service Work Program Clean-up Equipment	This Program holds juveniles accountable for minor criminal offenses, out-of-control behavior and curfew violations; and assists juveniles and parents in resolving individual and/or family problems. The Community Service Work Program directs juvenile offenders for a certain number of community service work hours that are proportionate with their offenses. The juveniles work off their offenses by pulling weeds, picking up large debris and trash, ridding the city of graffiti and repainting these areas.	$ 7,834.00
Contra Costa County	East County Juvenile Drug Court	The East County Juvenile Drug Court provides intensive outpatient drug/alcohol treatment to the youth of the East County area with immediate judicial oversight. Youthful offenders referred to the probation department with drug/alcohol arrests are referred to the program for assessment. Those who choose to participate are sentenced as wards of the court for treatment and potential sanctions. Treatment is highly structured two days per week including individual, group, and family. Clients have access to other treatment as needed. The entire treatment team includes the Juvenile Court Commissioner, the Deputy Probation Officer, the Deputy District Attorney, Deputy Public Defender, the treatment provider and the Program Facilitator. Using intensive review and system of immediate graduated sanctions, clients are guided toward positive choices and abstinence from drug and alcohol.	$ 112,974.00
Covina	Youth Accountability Board of Covina	The project funding assists in the creation of a Youth Accountability Board, providing interventions into the behavior and activities of first-time juvenile offenders who have committed a minor offense. The juvenile and his/her parents must agree to participate in the program for a six-month period, with a performance contract consisting of school attendance, school grades, behavior, and attendance at mental health counseling sessions. Successful completion of the program will result in a non-filing of the case with the juvenile court. The ultimate program goal is to lower the recidivism rate among program participants.	$ 9,286.00

El Dorado County District Attorney's Office	Juvenile Justice Grant 2004	The Western Slope of El Dorado County has two separate high school districts and numerous middle school districts, causing fragmentation of the effort to address juvenile crime in the schools and hold juveniles accountable to the community. Of necessity, there have been contradictory policies and procedures in addressing criminal activity by young people, resulting in vastly disparate treatment of similar crimes. The second part of the problem has been the necessity for the district attorney's office to assign attorneys to the Juvenile Calendar on only a temporary or part time basis, resulting in uneven or disparate positions being taken on holding juveniles accountable for their offenses, as well as the lack of experience and the time to work with other community agencies to address juvenile justice issues. The deputy district attorney (Debra Nau) hired and funded by this program has been reviewing reports submitted to the office by the probation department, to determine whether there is sufficient evidence to charge juveniles with a crime in juvenile court, and then has been prosecuting the cases to disposition. Ms. Nau will not perform other prosecutorial functions during this portion of the funded time, except as necessary to effectively investigate and prosecute those juvenile cases. The balance of her time has been and will continue to be devoted to coordinating a group consisting of management personnel at the various schools and school districts, juvenile probation, and interested community and treatment agencies, as well as provide training and education for school officials and students about the juvenile justice system.	$ 29,327.00
El Monte	Teaching Obedience Respect Courage and Honor (TORCH)	Teaching Obedience Respect Courage and Honor (TORCH) is a boot-camp style program with a firm emphasis on discipline and physical training. Program participants are required to complete 15 weeks of training to satisfactorily complete the program. In addition to the minor's participation, parents are also required to participate in a parent education program, which offers individual and group counseling services, and parenting classes. The primary goals of the program are: building self-esteem in program participants, instilling accountability, and reducing recidivism.	$ 24,670.00
Fremont	Fremont Youth Diversion Program	The Fremont Youth Diversion Program funds a portion of a Youth Services Counselor and seeks to divert a minimum of 40 first-time, non-violent offenders during the year, assigning them 16 to 200 hours of community service (depending on the offense) and individual or family counseling to complete. This two-pronged approach (a) holds the juvenile accountable for their offense while affording them the opportunity to compensate for their actions; and (b) identifies and addresses personal, family and environmental problems that may be contributing to behavior problems.	$ 24,272.00

Los Angeles	L.A. Bridges Gang Intervention Program	The Mayor's Criminal Justice Planning Office has two JABG Programs. The first is the LA Bridges Gang Prevention and Intervention Program. This program utilizes a school and community based approach to address the wide spread problem of gangs. L.A. Bridges targets active gang members and juvenile offenders at high risk for gang membership. The L.A. Bridges program has two components. The first is a law enforcement partnership, which is a school- based intervention. This Partnership includes community-based agencies working in collaboration with Probation Officers and other law enforcement personnel stationed or associated with 27 middle schools in the City of Los Angeles. The specific target group includes youth enrolled in middle school that are on probation or otherwise involved in or at risk for involvement in the juvenile justice system. The second component is a community-based approach to gang intervention. This component provides street outreach, case management, and accountability-based activities for juvenile offenders that are active gang members and no longer connected with the school system. The second program is the Mayor's Restorative Justice Initiative. This program makes funding available, through a competitive Request for Proposal (RFP) process, to local agencies to provide services to minors who are on probation. The last RFP process awarded funding to the following agencies: AADAP Inc., P.F. Bresee Foundation, Communities in Schools, People Who Care Youth Center, and the Public Health Foundation. These organizations receive referrals from the Los Angeles Police Department, Probation Department, and the juvenile courts. Intervention services include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> ❑ Academic remediation combined with job training and job placement ❑ Victim-offender mediation/dispute resolution focused on holding offenders accountable and repairing harm caused to victims and communities. Restitution services and case management	$ 1,388,948.00

Sacramento County	Developing Accountability in Youth (Day Project)	Developing Accountability in Youth (The Day Project) is a four-component project in 3 program purpose areas. As part of the County's Comprehensive Multi-Agency Juvenile Justice Plan, this program includes two valuable, purpose area 13, school safety programs (Truancy Impact Program and Prosecutor and Community Together) that seek to improve school safety in two distinct school districts identified as target areas by the Juvenile Crime Enforcement Coalition. The PACT program follows juvenile offenders through the justice system from arrest to case disposition and holds juvenile offenders accountable for regular school attendance. TIP provides an on-campus Youth Truancy Officer who identifies habitual truants and links them with the appropriate level of sanction to encourage school attendance. Another crucial step within juvenile accountability involves direct supervision by well-trained staff within our recently expanded, juvenile residential commitment facilities. This expansion has necessitated the hiring and training additional staff. Under Purpose Area 16, Break-in, CORE and peace officer training that provides for the safety of both officers and offenders will be made available to 24 new staff. The final component of the DAY Project, under purpose area 9, streamlines the communication between all juvenile justice system partners by developing and implementing an electronic document system that will instantly share juvenile intake documents at 925 personal computer and computer terminal stations used by Probation, Juvenile Court, the Office of the District Attorney and the Public Defender's Office.	$ 335,710.00
San Bernardino County	San Bernardino County Juvenile Accountability Project VI	The San Bernardino County Juvenile Accountability Project places six probation officers on school campuses to promote accountability of our youth. The placement of probation officers on campus empowers them to respond quickly and appropriately to juvenile justice problems. The school probation officers identify students with behavior problems that may place them at risk for future placement in the juvenile justice system. The probation officers provide intervention with the student's progress in school attendance and academic performance. San Francisco City and County	Juvenile Accountability Block Grant	San Francisco will utilize Juvenile Accountability Block Grant funds to support four operating programs that each play a key role in San Francisco's juvenile justice system. The Serious Offender Supervision Program deploys teams of probation officers and police officers to monitor serious offender youth in their homes, thus providing an alternative to detention or out-of-home placement while ensuring community safety. The Public Defender Placement Assistance Program provides two public defenders to address the backlog of cases in the Office of the Public Defender Juvenile Division while working to identify both community-based and out-of-home placements for youth who would otherwise remain in custody unnecessarily. The Youth Treatment and Education Court, San Francisco's juvenile drug court, provides a comprehensive community-based program where youth exhibiting delinquent conduct and substance abuse can receive education and substance abuse treatment and counseling as well as life skills, family services and aftercare. Finally, the Beacon Case Management program provides support to at-risk and juvenile justice youth in a school based setting, holding youth accountable to the terms of their probation while supporting their school efforts and linking them to needed services. These four programs are critical elements of the San Francisco Local Action Plan and to our efforts to hold youth accountable for their behavior in the juvenile justice system, in their schools and their communities.	$ 386,423.00

Sutter County	Sutter County Juvenile Services Coordination Project	The Family Intervention Team (FIT) Program, developed in 1998, represents a commitment by all local agencies to join forces in addressing the needs of high-end youth (and their families) at risk for out-of-home placement, while also ensuring service coordination with early intervention efforts. The “team” consists of a probation officer, case managers, mental health staff, CPS staff and staff from any other agencies that can provide resources for minors and their families. Cases assigned to the FIT Officer can be those minors on probation or early intervention cases. Efforts are made to address the needs of the entire family, including siblings who are considered at risk based upon their home environment. The Probation Officer carries an enforcement role with the use of graduated sanctions, but also acts as a support system to the minor and their families in an effort to minimize their involvement in the Juvenile Justice System.	$ 16,698.00
Tehama County	Juvenile Accountability Procecuton Program	Funding is required to meet the continuing need for employment of prosecutors to recognize the unique areas of juvenile crime relating to drugs, violence, and gang affiliation. In particular, gang affiliation promotes juvenile participation in criminal activity hindering rehabilitation and accountability for the offender. Costs of employment necessary to equip a prosecutor for this task shall be realized with this funding.	$ 9,234.00

Ventura County	Juvenile Drug Court and Truancy Intervention Program	Juvenile Drug Court is the collaborative effort of the Ventura Superior Court, the District Attorney, the Public Defender, the Probation Department , and the Alcohol and Drug Agency. Juveniles selected to participate are nonviolent offenders who show motivation for dealing with their substance abuse problem. Participants are under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court and receive close judicial and probation supervision, substance abuse treatment, and other "wraparound" services. The program generally lasts for 12-18 months and is specifically designed to hold participants accountable for their behavior, while addressing their substance abuse and any other related problems. The program has three phases with different goals and requirements that are tailored to each juvenile's specific substance abuse problem and stage of recovery. Participants are required to remain drug-free and complete all assigned tasks before advancing. Participants receive sanctions or negative consequences for noncompliance and rewards for good behavior or achievement of milestones. Sanctions are applied with discretion and are designed to maximize compliance and graduation from the program. The Truancy Intervention Program is designed to maximize school attendance, performance and graduation. To provide additional accountability to the SARB process a deputy district attorney was added to assist SARB Teams throughout the county. Services provided by the deputy district attorney include the following: training sessions for school officials, law enforcement and community based organizations on legal and operational issues pertaining to truancy; truancy education presentations for parents and youths who are identified by schools as having a truancy problem; and court action against parents and youth who fail to comply with SARB corrective action plans	$ 176,356.00
Visalia	Community Based Police and Probation Partnership	This program will allow a Deputy Probation Officer to be assigned to the Special Enforcement Unit (SEU) of the Visalia Police Department to provide, in conjunction with SEU officers, police and probation services to maximum-risk juvenile offenders. Activities include face-to-face contacts, drug screens, service of warrants, warrant-less searches (in accordance with probation terms and conditions) and violations of probation. The message is clearly being sent to juvenile offenders that they will be held accountable for their behavior and violations of probation will result in consequences.	$ 20,110.00
Vista	Vista Juvenile Accountability Program	An interagency information-sharing program will be established to allow for earlier identification, control, supervision, and treatment of juveniles who repeatedly commit serious delinquent or criminal acts. The primary objectives will be 1) To establish a team that includes the juvenile and criminal justice system, Vista Unified School District, North County Lifeline, and other social service agencies that work with juveniles to share information, and 2) to maintain a "caseload" of a minimum of 50 randomly selected juveniles that repeatedly commit serious delinquent or criminal acts.	$ 7,386.00
